The Representatives of the various states followed the Governors in carconage with few exceptions, with their states on horseback. Then came the grand of vic division, made up of marching clube, Reuphlican clube, Rough Riders, Porto Ricans, cowboys, miners, Filipinos, forming perhaps an even more picturesque display than the military. It took the parade about two and a naif hours to pass, and a good part of this time the President was on his feet saluting the marchars. In a stand opposite the President's stand there were some $500 people, and all along the line of march the streets were crowded to the very edge of the ropes that had been strung to keep visitors out of the road. Seven Perish in Collision of Trains En Route to. Inauguration.

(Special to The Evening World.)
PITTSBURG, March 4.—After Investigation it is now certain that the list hetween the two special trains from Cieveland on the Pennsylvania Railroad Some of the soldiers say a number of their comrades are still under the wreckage, but all seem to have been accounted for.

The list of injured will reach forty, six or seven of whom are likely to die. All are being cared for at the several hospitals.

The accident was due to a rear end collision between the two sections of a train bound for the inauguration over the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago division of the Pennsylvania Railroad at 6.45 o'clock lest night. Nearly all of the dead and hurt are Ohio National Guardsmen.

The accident happened at Clifton Station, eight miles west of this city, where the first section of the train stopped to repack a hot box and was run into by the second section.

When the first train came to a stand. the second train, running at the rate of fifty miles an hour, was so close upon It that a flagman who ran to the rear t stop the second train had not time to wave a warning, and on came the flyer. Amid the screams, the groans of the injured and dying, there came a loud explosion and fumes from the Pintsch gas tanks arose and rendered uncon down. Then there burst forth flames from both the Pullman cars.

heroes were devoleped. A private, bleeding from many wounds, climbed from the rear car, his body and bleeding, his clothes on fire. Quickly he smothered the blaze in his garments with his bare hands. Five times he entered the blazing car, and injured man in his arms. A fifth time he burrowed through the flames. Through the exploding gas fumes and the burning car the soldier was seen to bend over a man pinloned down by a seat. He tugged at the seat with all his strength and then staggered, fell forward and the fire covered him. He had died to save another.

Family of Charles Gantler Fear He Has Met with Foul Play.

The White Plains police have been asked by the New York police to look for Charles Gantler, a German resident, of New York, said to have been missing since Washington's Birthday. It has been learned that he went to White Plains on that day and visited several real-estate offices, making inquiries as to what property here was in the market and what prices were asked. It is said that he had $3,500 in cash with him. Inquiries at the offices he visited by the police show he bought no property during his visit, and that he has not been heard from since.
